“Sector positioning was largely neutral, reflecting fair valuations across investment-grade markets at the start of the year.”

How did the Enhanced Cash portfolios perform during the quarter? How did this performance compare to the portfolio’s benchmark?

Portfolios benchmarked to the Bloomberg U.S. Treasury Bellwethers 1 Year Index returned 0.74% during the first quarter of 2026, outperforming the benchmark’s return of 0.66% by 8 basis points.

What factors had the greatest impact on the portfolios during the quarter?

Consistent with our investment philosophy, security selection was the primary driver of excess returns, contributing 6 of the portfolio’s 8 basis points of relative performance. Government-related securities accounted for 3 basis points, with the remainder from asset-backed and corporate bonds.

What securities/sectors provided the greatest contribution to portfolio return?

Sector positioning was largely neutral, reflecting fair valuations across investment-grade markets at the start of the year. An overweight to corporate and asset-backed securities added 3 basis points combined in relative performance.

What were among the strongest performing securities in the portfolio?

Market volatility increased following the escalation of the Iran conflict on February 27, which resulted in higher interest rates and wider trading ranges. This environment created attractive opportunities in U.S. Agencies, the best-performing sector during the quarter. Security selection within agencies added 3 basis points to relative performance.

Were there any sectors which hindered the portfolio’s performance?

Treasury positioning detracted less than 1 basis point as the yield curve experienced a sharper-than-expected bear flattening. Concerns about the inflationary effects of geopolitical tensions pushed short-term rates higher as markets reevaluated expectations for Federal Reserve rate cuts in 2026.

What is your current outlook? How is the portfolio positioned based on your outlook?

In response to increased volatility and improved new issue pricing, McKee portfolios added exposure to all spread sectors in the second half of March, reversing earlier underweights to corporates and agency mortgages. Looking ahead, historically tight corporate spreads and elevated volatility are expected to support opportunities in government related sectors. Inflation is projected to average approximately 3.2% in 2026, trending lower toward year end and potentially allowing for one 25 basis point reduction in the federal funds rate. Under this scenario, 10-year Treasury yields are expected to trend toward 4% by year-end, assuming the Iran conflict is resolved and the Strait of Hormuz reopens.

Performance is presented in U.S. dollars and reflects total returns. "Gross" returns are shown before deduction of investment management fees, while "Net" returns reflect the deduction of actual investment management fees charged to client accounts included in the composite, which may vary. For illustrative purposes only, a $100 million account paying a 0.50% annual management fee and earning a 10% gross return compounded over 10 years would result in an approximate 9.5% net return. This example is hypothetical and not representative of actual client performance or fee arrangements. Fees are detailed in Part 2A of CS McKee's Form ADV.
